Here is some context for Genesis 39:1-23.

The story of Joseph starts in Genesis 37, where we see the animosity between Joseph and his brothers. Joseph gives bad reports about his brothers to their father, and he tells his brothers his dreams about them bowing down to him. This doesn't sit well with the brothers, so they plan to kill him. Instead of following through on this, they decide to sell him into slavery so they can get a little money out of the deal. Then they take Joseph's ornate, unique robe, spread blood on it from an animal, and report to their father that Joseph is dead.

In the meantime, Joseph is sold to a caravan of Midianite merchants headed to Egypt. There, he is sold to Potiphar, one of Pharaoh's officials.

What does the passage say about God?

Understanding how a passage fits into the overarching story of the Bible is important.

God had a plan for Joseph, and that plan didn't end with Joseph staying in Potiphar's house. Getting sent to prison was one step of many that God used to guide Joseph to a place in Pharaoh's house. Once he was in Pharaoh's house, God used Joseph to save his family and the whole land of Egypt from a famine. Each step along the way may not have made sense to Joseph, but he kept being faithful no matter what his circumstances were.

Think about Jesus in the last hours of his life. From the outside looking in, Jesus' betrayal, arrest, torture, and crucifixion don't make any sense. But looking back from the perspective of the resurrection, and knowing Jesus' purpose on earth was to pay the penalty for our sin by becoming the perfect sacrifice, all of those steps make perfect sense. No matter what the circumstances, Jesus was faithful to his calling to be obedient.

Next time you have circumstances in life that just don't make sense, remember Joseph and Jesus. Sometimes the steps to where you need to be in life don't make sense to you. But you can trust that God is working in your life to get you to where he wants you to be. You just need to trust him and stay faithful to him no matter what your circumstances are. Someday, you will understand.
